

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Speaker, I join my colleagues in commemorating the 85th anniversary of the Armenian Genocide.

On April 24, 1915, the Ottoman government unleashed an eight-year assault against its Armenian population. During this brutal campaign, one and a half million innocent men, women, and children were murdered, Armenian communities were systematically destroyed, and over one million people were forcibly deported.

The pain of these atrocities is only compounded by the Turkish government's revisionism and denial of the tragic events that took place. This is what Elie Wiesel has called a "double killing"—murdering the dignity of the survivors and the remembrance of the crime. It is incumbent upon us to stand up against these efforts and make United States records documenting this period available to students, historians, and the descendants of those who survived.

This somber anniversary is a tribute to the memory of the victims of the Armenian Genocide, and a painful reminder that the world's inaction left a tragic precedent for other acts of senseless bloodshed. The road from Armenia to Auschwitz is direct. If more attention had been centered on the slaughter of these innocent men, women, and children, perhaps the events of the Holocaust might never have taken place.

Today, we vow once more that genocide will not go unnoticed and unmourned. We pledge to stand up against governments that persecute their own people, and declare our commitment to fight all crimes against humanity and the efforts to hide them from the rest of the world.

Ms. STABENOW. Mr. Speaker, today I join with my colleagues in what has become an annual event in which none of us take great joy in. Today, the Turkish government still denies the Armenian genocide and it does so to its own detriment. All of us would like to see the denial in Ankara end. The Armenian genocide happened. The historic fact, Mr. Speaker, is that 1.5 million Armenians were killed and over 500,000 deported from 1894 to 1921.

On April 24, 1915, 300 Armenian leaders, writers and intellectuals were rounded up, deported and killed. 5000 other poor Armenians were killed in their homes. The Turkish government continues to deny the Armenian genocide and claims that Armenians were only removed from the eastern war zone. America has been enriched in countless ways from the survivors of the Armenian genocide who have come here. As a representative from Michigan, I want to especially highlight that we have been blessed by the contributions of the Armenian communities.

Today I rise to call upon the Republic of Turkey, an ally of the United States, to admit what happened. Mr. Speaker, we want Turkey to see its history for what it is so it can see its future for what it can be. Let us all rise today to commemorate the Armenian genocide and hope that events like it never happen again.

Mrs. MCCARTHY of New York. Mr. Speaker, I rise today with my colleagues to acknowledge the horrific events that occurred during the Armenian Genocide from 1915 to 1923, the final days of the Ottoman Empire.

The horror of the Genocide is seared in the minds of Armenians around the world. Beginning in 1915 the Ottoman Empire, ruled by Muslim Turks, carried out a series of massacres in order to eliminate its Christian Armenian minority. By 1923, 1.5 million Armenians were brutally killed, while another 500,000 were deported. Stateless and penniless. Armenians were forced to move to any country that afforded refuge. Many found their way to the United States, while others escaped to countries such as Russia and France.

Future generations must be made aware of this historic event in our world history. It is unfortunate that the Republic of Turkey refuses to acknowledge the genocide against the Armenians. Innocent people were deprived of their freedom and senselessly killed because of their religious or political beliefs.

Armenia has made great strides to become an independent state. In 1992 the newly independent republic of Armenia, became a member of the United Nations, and in 1995 held their first open legislative elections.

Since the genocide, various acts of human rights violations have continued to take place around the world. If we ever hope to prevent further genocides we must never forget the atrocities endured by the Armenian people.

ARMENIAN GENOCIDE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. PORTER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Speaker, today I come to the floor to commemorate the anniversary of one of the darkest stains on the history of Western Civilization—the genocide of the Armenian people by the Ottoman Turkish Empire. I greatly appreciate the strong support of so many of our colleagues in this effort, especially the gentleman from New Jersey, Mr. PALLONE, my fellow co-chairman of the Armenian Issues Caucus.

I wish, as every Member does, that this Special Order did not have to take place. But every year, I return to the floor in April to speak out about the past. To fail to remember the past, not only dishonors the victims and survivors—it encourages future tyrants to believe that they can commit such heinous acts with impunity. Unfortunately, we have seen over and over the tragic results of hatred and ignorance: the Holocaust, the Rwandan Genocide, the ethnic cleansing in the former Yugoslavia, the continued mass killing in the Sudan and the massacres in East Timor last fall. And far too often the so-called civilized nations of the world turned a blind eye.

On April 24, 1915, over 200 Armenian religious, political and intellectual leaders were arrested in Istanbul and killed, marking the beginning of an 8-year campaign which resulted in the destruction of the ethnic Armenian community which had previously lived in Anatolia and Western Armenia. Between 1915 and 1923, approximately 1.5 million men, women and children were deported, forced into slave labor camps, tortured and eventually exterminated.

The Armenian Genocide was the first genocide of the modern age and has been recognized as a precursor of subsequent attempts to destroy a race through an official systematic effort. Congress has consistently demanded recognition of the historical fact of the Armenian Genocide. The modern German Government, although not itself responsible for the horrors of the Holocaust, has taken responsibility for and apologized for it. Yet, the Turkish Government continues to deny that the Armenian genocide ever took place.

The past year has seen small steps of progress concerning Turkey's relationship with its neighbors. The devastating earthquakes of last summer in Turkey and subsequently Greece, allowed various nations in the region, including Armenia, to work together on humanitarian grounds. Turkey's EU candidacy is forcing it to face its problems both with its neighbors Greece, and Cyprus as well as internal problems such as its continuing human rights violations.

Although I am encouraged by these small steps, Turkey has yet to show the world that it is serious about solving the human rights problems within its borders. Remaining in jail are the Kurdish parliamentarians who were arrested over six years ago as well as numerous human rights workers. At the end of 1999, Turkey had the second highest number of journalists in jail—eighteen—the only country in the world with more was China. I sincerely hope Turkey's desire to become part of the EU community will require Turkey to improve its internal human rights problems as well as face its past and acknowledge its role in one of the 20th centuries greatest tragedies—the Armenian Genocide.

Armenians will remain vigilant to ensure that this tragic history is not repeated. The United States should do all that it can in this regard as well, including a clear message about the historical fact of the Armenian Genocide. We do Turkey no favors by enabling her self-delusion, and we make ourselves hypocrites when we fail to sound the alarm on what is happening today in Turkey.

Armenia has made amazing progress in rebuilding a society and a nation—a triumph of the human spirit in the face of dramatic obstacles. Armenia is committed to democracy, market economics and the rule of law. Even in the face of the tragedy which befell the Armenian Government last October, where eight people were murdered in the parliament including the Prime Minister Sarkisian, the Armenian Government and its people remain committed to freedom and democracy. I will continue to take a strong stand in Congress in support of these principles and respect for human rights, and I am proud to stand with Armenia in so doing. We must never forget what happened to the Armenians 85 years ago, just as we must never overlook the human rights violations which are happening today in all corners of the world.

IN REMEMBRANCE OF THE ARMENIAN HOLOCAUST

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. FOSSELLA). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to commemorate one of the most tragic events in the 20th century and that is, of course, the Armenian Genocide of 1915 to 1923. It ranks amongst the most tragic episodes. It was the first but unfortunately not the last of the incidents of ethnic genocide that the world experienced during the last
